In spite of the clumor of the Liverpool press, the English untile interest will lose more money, in consequence of their neasures operating on the prices of cotton, than from the ntention, or wish, or purpose of our merchants to defraud them of their property. $39,050,000 We have an aggregate of dead loss to the people of this country through the system set on foot by the Albany politicians, besides the crucifixion of the late United States Bank, and the utter destruction of the good currency furnished by that invaluable institution.

This is what Mr. Edwin Crosswell of Albany, las the auda city to call "a positive improvement in the currency"—"certain ly an improvement in the currency which is entitled to commenda-tion." Oh! oh! The Treasury Department gave directions to the Collector of this port, three weeks ago, to make out a statement of goods and merchandize in the public stores, and the cash duties accruing thereon. The statement runs nearly thus:—

Goods, wares and merchandize in public stores, $9,750,000
Cash duties accruing thereon,
In a few days the importers will be required to take out these goods and pay the duties in specie. Failing to comply with this demand, the whole amount of goods will be thrown into the market, and sold for what they will fetch to pay the duties. What is to be the effect of this course on the prices of goods, and on the temper of the mercantile community? Nous verrous.

Cotton Market. NEW YORK. July 17. On Saturday the trade in cotton was very light. We remark a sale which took place on Priday of 306 bales Singleton, South Carolism crop at 13c., the only sale that has been made for the past two months over 12c. The lot was taken for Havre. Prices for cotten of all descriptions under fair have rather a tendency downwards. Our quotations for fair are 10jc., and good fair . A few transactions in Pforida on Saturday at 94c., and ile at 104c. From additional facts that we have gathered, we can now safely estimate the stock of cotton on plantation to be about 100,000 bales. The planter has it secretly locked up in his warehouse, and when the buyers call on him to pur chase, he informs the intended purchaser that he has none or hand. They will then go to his neighbor, who in like manner informs him as his neighbor did before, but at the same time adds that his neighbor. (the very man that says he has none on adds that his neighbor. (the very man that says he has none on hand.) has 15,000, 20,000, or whatever amount that the planter has in his warehouse. This shows that there is yet a large quantity on plantation, and the planters are determined to keep it back, and thereby secure good prices. We have two days later from Liverpool by an arrival at Boston. She brings the cotion market of the 6th of June. Sales on that day were 4000 bales, at id lower than the rates of Friday, (2d ult.) The sales, uales, at id lower than the rates of Friday, (2d ult.) The sales, as it will be seen, were large. The next packet from England will be looked for with great anxiety by the cotton holder of thiscountry. The Virginian, the packet of the 3th, has been due for some days past. She will probably bring three or four days later, as she must have been detained. It will be seen by our last report that the stock on hand at Liverpool the 2d of June, races do the stock on hand up to the same time last year, 119,000 males. This shows a vast decrease of busine sext that port, toge ther with a great increase of import. The calculation will an swer both ways. The business has decreased, owing to the pre-sent revulsions, a little over one quarter, and the import, owing to the remittances, increased about the same, which togethe with the present trade, will make the stock on hand this, agree with the present trace; with man the same calculation will answer for Havre. The quantity on hand there is about twice as large this year as last. A good demand had sprung up there on the sailing of the Albany, but it will last but a short time, as the heavy failures in England will drive all the remaining ts in Havre. It will act the same there as in England. It will only be behind a little. The news we received yesterday shows a decline—the next news from pool on the arrival of two or three more ships will greatly in crease—as the beavy remittances in this staple commence about the 1st ult., none of the ships with these large cargoes had arrived there, at our latest accounts.

counts from New Orleans to the 8th inst.—the market there on that date was fair—prices vary but little if any from those of the s for the week ending on that day were between 2000 and 3000 bales, of prices varying from $\frac{1}{2}$ to 12c. Principal sales at 9 a 12c. We have nothing further from Mobile.—
The market at Savannah on the 10th was rather duti, and prices The market at Savaine. Sales have been made as low as 64c, but have declined a shade. Sales have been made as low as 64c, but the principal sales were at 8 a 11c—nothing doing in Sea Islands. for the article for this season of the year, and sales during the week were to a considerable extent—the demand is good for fair qualities, while it is difficult to self common parcels—good and prime is selfing at 7 a 10c as the extreme of the market. Sales are small at the latter price, but it could be easily obtained for a considerable quantity if the quality was any thing extra. The market at Charleston on the 11th was without the slightest change. Notwithstanding the rendency of prices being downwards, we shall not today make any alteration in our classification, as there has not yet been a decided decline.

Bosron, July 14, P. M.—Since our last publication no impurtant variation on prices has takentylese; the business recticed in the market for a long period still continues, without any prospect of an early change—the tande generally manifest little inclination to operate much beyond their immediate wants, and for shipping the transactions are upon a very limited scale. We notice a few of the most prominent articles that have experienced any change.

Maranxas, July 5.—Since we inst had this pleasure, none of your favors have reached us. Clayed sugars are in demand, particularly the finer sorts, which are unusually scarce—of Mascovado sugar there is a large stack, principally of middling and low quality, and can readily be purchased at our quotation. Coffee continues dull, and bet little is doing in molasses. The last sale of rice was at 12½ rs. The market is rather scanity supplied with good lard. Exclusing on the 47. S. northernorts, nominal.
